In the previous class period, students had begun to work by themselves and in small groups on several problems that were written on the board. Class had ended, however, before students had the opportunity to discuss their work as a whole class. This math period begins with a whole-group discussion of the first problem that was written on the board the previous day: "Which is more $\frac{4}{4}$ or $\frac{4}{8}$?"

It's extremely important what Keith just said. Could you say it again? That would be very helpful to some people in this class. Listen to Keith about what he did wrong the first time, he says.

5 Keith:

6

I made the four-fourths the same as she did then I made four-eighths longer than- a longer piece.

7 Teacher:

8

Like this? Can I try what I think you're saying? You made a four-fourths like this. (Draws:)

9

And he- when he made the four-eighths. (Draws:)

13

Is that what you did? And so then when you shade it in, if you shade in four-fourths- (Shades in the four fourths) And over here you have to shade in how many?

14 Students:

Four.

15 Teacher:

(Shades in the four eighths)

16

What happens when you try to compare the pictures?

17 Keith:

They're the same.
